Dear Amelia and Dimitrios,

My sincere apologies for the delay in replying. The efforts to silence me in Singapore are vicious and I spend an inordinate amount of time defending myself.

I am reassured by your comprehensive and thorough address of the complaint. Thank you for returning to me confidence that there is such a thing as due process.

Indeed, had it not been for the accurate reporting at STROKOG, it would have been impossible to identify the misconduct. Worryingly, another UNSW and STROKOG collaborator in Singapore, Christopher Chen, is implicated in evidence I compiled and did not share. I am writing to you regarding UNSW's consideration of your complaint of 18 January 2021. I advise that an Interim Initial Assessment has been completed and the Designated Officer has determined that your complaint is being considered under the UNSW Research Misconduct Procedure, which applies to Research undertaken by UNSW Researchers. The Designated Officer has identified two items from your complaint that relate to Research conducted (or published) by UNSW Researchers. Below are 2 tables that include items which have been identified as relating to Research conducted (or published) by UNSW Researchers. We request that you to review these tables and confirm the following.

1) Whether they are the only items from your complaint that relate to Research conducted (or published) by a Researcher at UNSW.

2) The specific nature of your concerns in relation to each Table Item in both Tables 1 and 2, particularly in relation to the queries listed in red text. The columns titled 'complaint type' and 'comment' are for your use only. Once we have received your clarification, the Designated Officer will review the information and you will be notified of the outcome of the Initial Assessment.

Dear Amelia and Dimitrios,

My sincere apologies for the delay in replying. The efforts to silence me in Singapore are vicious and I spend an inordinate amount of time defending myself.

I am reassured by your comprehensive and thorough address of the complaint. Thank you for returning to me confidence that there is such a thing as due process.

I address the points raised, below in-line in blue text with reference to notes below the tables:
